When investing in financial instruments, the value of the investment may increase or decrease, and the investor may lose all or part of their investment. Careful consideration of possible financial distress should be made before investing in any financial instrument.

Type of coverage, including valuation methodologies and assumptions

1. Fundamental analysis with a target price and recommendation. DNB Carnegie publishes a target price for most of the stocks in our Research Universe. The target price is the analyst's assessment of expected total return (including dividend per share) over the coming 12 months based on various fundamental valuation methods. The target price is based on a combination of several valuation methods such as discounted cash flow, pricing based on earnings multiples, multiple on book value, net asset value and peer comparison. A commonly used method is DCF valuation, where future cash flows are discounted to today. Analysts may also use different valuation multiples, e.g. P/E and EV/EBIT, relative to industry peers to obtain a target price. For companies where it is appropriate, a target price can also be based on the analyst's assessment of a fair ratio relative to the net asset value of the company. Target prices are revised when earnings and cash flow forecasts are changed. Thus, changes to estimates are a key risk to the target price. Other reasons for revising target prices include changes in the underlying value of a company's assets and when factors affecting the required rate of return change, which can also be seen as risk factors to the target price.

2. Quantitative and technical analysis. DNB Carnegie produces research based on quantitative and technical analysis (“quant products”). Such research is based on mathematical and technical models applied to companies, industries and sectors, rather than a fundamental analysis of a company. Quantitative and technical analysis thus does not result in estimates, a valuation or a recommendation (e.g. BUY, SELL, HOLD). Quant products may also have a significantly different time horizon from those of other products generated by DNB Carnegie. The views expressed in quant products may thus differ from, or conflict with, those presented in other research reports generated by DNB Carnegie.

3. Commissioned research reports include the analyst's assessment of a fair value range over the coming 6-12 months based on various fundamental valuation methods. A commonly used method is DCF valuation, where future cash flows are discounted to today. Analysts may also use different valuation multiples, e.g. P/E and EV/EBIT, relative to industry peers. For companies where it is appropriate, a fair value range can also be based on the analyst's assessment of a fair ratio relative to the net asset value of the company. Fair value ranges represent the assessment of the analyst(s) at the time of writing.

You will find detailed information about the valuation or methodology, the underlying assumptions, and risks on DNB Carnegie Edge (edge.dnbcarnegie.se). The complete history of equity research reports and previous recommendations can also be found on DNB Carnegie Edge and here.

Recommendation structure:

BUY – expected return* greater than 10% within 12 months and an attractive risk/reward.

HOLD – expected return* of 0–10% within 12 months, or a neutral risk/reward profile.

SELL – expected negative return* within 12 months and an unattractive risk/reward.

NOT RATED – no recommendation on the stock.

UNDER REVIEW – the recommendation has been suspended temporarily.

*total return including dividend per share

Recommendations may, from time to time, deviate from the definitions above owing to market volatility. Any such deviation will be assessed regularly to determine whether it should no longer be considered temporary.
